The Lady in White

One of the most famous ghost stories associated with the Greenville Inn is that of the Lady in White. According to local lore, she is the spirit of a woman who tragically died in the inn under mysterious circumstances. Guests have reported sightings of a pale figure dressed in white wandering the hallways late at night, often accompanied by the faint sound of sobbing. The apparition is said to appear most frequently near a particular room on the second floor, which many now avoid due to its eerie reputation.

Unexplained Noises and Activity

In addition to visual sightings, the inn has been the site of various auditory phenomena. Staff and visitors often report hearing footsteps in empty corridors, doors opening and closing on their own, and whispers that cannot be attributed to any human source. Objects are said to move without explanation, and some guests have experienced sudden drops in temperature in specific areas of the inn. These manifestations contribute to the Greenville Inn's status as a hotspot for paranormal enthusiasts.

Other Entities and Legends

Beyond the Lady in White, there are several other spirits believed to inhabit the Greenville Inn. These include a former innkeeper whose presence is felt near the reception area, and a child's ghost reportedly heard playing or crying in certain rooms. Local legends also mention unexplained shadows and fleeting figures glimpsed out of the corner of one's eye. Collectively, these tales enrich the inn's haunted narrative and intrigue visitors looking for supernatural encounters.
