Understanding Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs

Maslow's hierarchy of needs is a foundational psychological theory that outlines human motivation through a five-tier model of needs, often depicted as a pyramid. The levels include physiological needs, safety needs, love and belonging, esteem, and self-actualization. This theory emphasizes that basic needs must be satisfied before individuals can progress to higher psychological and self-fulfillment needs. Understanding this hierarchy is crucial for interpreting literature, psychology texts, and various educational assignments found on platforms such as CommonLit.

The Five Levels of Maslow's Hierarchy

The five levels of Maslow's hierarchy provide a structured lens to analyze human behavior and motivation:

- Physiological Needs: Fundamental requirements for survival such as food, water, shelter, and sleep.
- Safety Needs: Protection from harm, security, and stability in life circumstances.
- Love and Belonging: Social relationships, friendships, intimacy, and family connections.
- Esteem Needs: Respect, self-esteem, recognition, and achievement.
- Self-Actualization: The realization of personal potential, creativity, and self-fulfillment.

Relevance to CommonLit Texts
